

"THE BEACH WASN'T
A DESIRABLE PLACE
TO LIVE IN THE
SEVENTIES – HARD TO BELIEVE THESE DAYS."

Photo: Heidi Wro

Welcome to our happy place

WORDS Millie Looker

Welcome to our holiday happy place. In beachside-favourite Glenelg, just 20 minutes from the CBD, Seawall Apartments boasts stunning ocean views and a vintage vibe that makes it the perfect home away from home.

Photo: Ben Heide

Positioned on absolute beachfront, you're in the ideal spot to watch every sunset while you sit on your private deck or balcony with a cheeseboard and a glass of wine, watching the activity along the foreshore. In summer, the sea breeze keeps you cool and in winter you can enjoy the same serenity from your personal hot tub (candlelight optional).

While the ocean views are definitely something to boast about, the courtyards surrounding the apartments also ooze with charm. They're full of hidden gems and seaside treasures collected during the past 40 years.

In summer, these courtyards are transformed into the perfect destination for an outdoor meal — and not to mention, a kids' wonderland.

All 22 apartments on offer are full of history and decorated with a nod to their seaside location. Seawall has apartments available with up to four bedrooms, each with its own unique layout. Apartments are available on the beachfront or facing the idyllic courtyard and garden area, and are all private and self-contained.

Seawall Apartments wouldn't be the same without its heart and soul, Rachael Osborne. Rachael first moved into the main building as a little girl, when her dad (the late Alan Osborne) decided to relocate to the seaside.

"The beach wasn't a desirable place to live in the seventies — hard to believe these days. It looked completely different to what it does today," Rachael says.

Since it was first established in 1977, Seawall has expanded along the foreshore, converting an old school, a former chapel, two houses and some split-level apartments into what we know as Seawall Apartments today. Having just celebrated its 40th birthday, this slice of heaven is still family owned and operated, with Rachael and her family continuing to build their home within its walls.

Family is an intricate part of Seawall's charm, with Rachael creating accommodation that suits families large and small. It's no surprise that parents and their kids make this their regular no-fuss holiday destination, with the ever-entertaining Jetty Road mere minutes down the esplanade and an ocean making up your front yard. It's hard to beat for an easy getaway or even just a night away from reality.

Staycation

When was the last time you lived like a tourist in your own city? There was a time when jetting off to the likes of Noosa or Bali was the only way to holiday, but after a couple of nights at Seawall you'll feel like you've been away for weeks — and you'll be more relaxed, since there's no airports to navigate.

Loved-up couples, solo travellers, holidaying families, corporate bonding... no matter who you are, there's a Seawall Apartment that's a perfect match for your beachside desires.

Seawall's stretch of beachfront bliss is the ultimate holiday destination, and will always be Adelady's happy place. Already packing your bags? 🏖️

Photo: Ben Heide

Photo: Joel Durbridge

Mural

Recently commissioned artwork, aptly named The Beastly Sea, is the latest addition to Seawall, taking up an entire wall of one of their buildings. The mural, based on a photograph by Che Chorley and painted by Dave Court, is the perfect fit for Seawall's seaside aesthetic (and for your next selfie).

@seawallapartments

seawallapartments.com.au

Photo: Che Chorley